

The Tibet Fund partnered with residents of Rabgeyling settlement to implement a road development project in Hunsur, South India. A dilapidated road between villages M and O was affecting the movement of residents, especially the elders and children, and curtailing everyday activities. Now with the improved road, elders can safely go for their daily circumambulation around the monastery, and children can play and go to their schools without harm. TTF's support has helped improve the overall accessibility and mobility of all residents of the two villages.
